STATE HAS OILED
The work at Tatfield and Ocean is Also Finished, 10,000 Feet Being Covered—City Spreading More Oil.

The oil for the state roads having arrived here, a tank has been used in covering the state road north from the Penobscot mill to Ocean, a stretch of 8,000 feet, while a stretch of 2,000 feet to the south of the village, belonging to the state, has been covered. The property owners along that section wanted the oil placed on the road in front of their property, but it was impossible for the state to do those roads, as only state roads can be covered with state oil.

There being one or two carts of oil remaining in the tank car after the roads about Tatfield were covered, this was brought here and placed on the short section of state road on the East Side from the bridge to a point near the blacksmith shop. All this work has been done under the direction of John Donovan, who is soon to oil the state roads about Baltic, after which the roads in Montville, built this summer will be given a coating of oil.

On Monday the city began spreading more oil, having finished Chestnut street and placed the oil in Franklin street from the block paving north and for a short distance in Boswell avenue.

Motor Boat Owners Fined.
Twenty operators of motor boats on the Thames river have been subjected to fines of $100 or more for not having their boats properly equipped. This is the result of recent investigations on the part of revenue cutter and customs officers. Fifty-five operators on the Connecticut river were caught improperly equipped and have been fined. On the Thames river, however, how he had "got by" when an inspector asked where the fire extinguisher was, and the owner of the boat, pointing to an empty pail, said: "There it is. I had it filled with sand, but it was necessary to use the pail so I dumped the sand out for a few minutes." After informing his friends of what he supposed was a tactful handling of the inspector, this man received a letter, notifying him to appear at Hartford custom house and pay a fine of $100.

Free Employment Bureaus.
The work of the free public employment bureaus of the state for August shows a falling off in the world of that of the preceding month, with the exception of the number furnished with help, which shows an increase of a little over 2 per cent. Has Ceased Being an Ornament.
The plaster design representing the founders of Norwich, which was erected on the 25th anniversary celebration of the town in July, 1905, still stands at the right of Chelsea parade. The design has been covered with a layer of paint, and it is now an eyesore to the locality, standing as it does like a faded flower. Civic pride ought to move the town or city or whoever has charge to see that it is taken down and carted away, all of which can be done in an hour or two.

The reservoir on Monday was 202 inches below full pond and dropping at the rate of an inch and a half a day.

LARGE S. OF V. CLASS INITIATION.

State Officers in Attendance to Assist in the Work—Second Largest Camp in the State with 101 Members—Many More Applications.

The class initiation of Sedgwick camp, No. 4, Sons of Veterans, brought a number of distinguished visitors to Norwich on Monday evening, as well as members from practically every camp in the eastern part of the state.

The Sons of Veterans and their guests from posts of the G. A. R. and other camps, gathered at Buckingham Memorial, from which, after a reception, they marched to Olympic hall for the initiatory exercises shortly after 8:30 o'clock. There were about 150 in the hall, with Special Aide Charles R. Hale and Division Secretary Robert T. Alcorn bearing the colors in the van. McCord's orchestra played during the reception.

A class of 56 appeared in readiness to receive the initiatory degree, the balance of the 31 persons whose names were secured being unable to be present. The work was impressively performed by the state degree team, made up of the following members:

Commander, Division Commander Judge Ralph M. Grant, Hartford; senior vice commander, Paul Bogue, Hartford; junior vice commander, Ernest Leck, Chandler, New London; patriotic instructor, George W. Sisson, New London; chaplain, Edward Cole, commander, Avery camp, New London; Special Aide Charles R. Hale, Hartford; color bearer, Division Secretary Robert T. Alcorn, Hartford; and Division Secretary Robert T. Alcorn, Hartford; soloist, Willis Waterman, New London.

They received many compliments on the perfect manner in which they conducted the ceremonies, following which there were brief speeches by a number of those present.

Among the notables at the initiation were Nelson S. Bishop of Hartford, department commander of the G. A. R.; Post Department Commander Lafayette Starr of New London, Department Patriotic Instructor Charles A. Potter of Danielson, Commander James J. J. B. Kilbourne post, No. 77, Central Village, George A. Huskell of Jewett City, and Commander Henry Hovey of Sedgwick post, No. 1, of this city. The work was also represented by a good number of the veterans.

Camp commanders in attendance included E. R. Williams, Jr., of Mystic, Dr. Edward F. Perry of Putnam, Dr. F. W. Danner of Danielson, and Albert H. Hall of Jewett City.

The 56 new members bring the total membership of Sedgwick camp up to 101, making it the second largest camp in Connecticut. The credit for this is largely due to Special Aide Charles R. Hale of Hartford, while the enthusiasm with which the members took up the campaign was another factor.

The committee who arranged the details of the initiation and carried it through with signal success comprised Albert C. Fairbanks, commander of Sedgwick camp, Arthur L. Peale, John Donovan, George S. Koppeler, William R. Salmon of Norwich, (to be secretary), James E. Comstock, constables, Fred M. Dimmick, Cyrus E. Shelley and Fred N. Rogers, registrars of voters, James C. Smith and Peter Taylor; tree warden, Peter Taylor; grand jurors, Walter L. Barrett, William L. Peckham and Malcolm E. Peckham.

GOLD MEDAL CONTEST FOR THREE COUNTIES.

Perkins on Monday afternoon reported on the good work that the playground in Greeneville, conducted under the Y. M. C. A. auspices had done. Children in that section say that their fruits have been less molested this summer than in years. The president trusted more.
